

1st Multidisciplinary Conference

“Young Scientists Initiative”

It is our pleasure to invite you to be a speaker at the upcoming 1st Multidisciplinary Conference of young researchers, post-graduates and students “Young Scientists Initiative”

in English

12 May – 13 May

Venue: FRC “Komi Science Centre”, 24 Kommunisticheskaya St., Syktyvkar

The Conference is designed to bring together young researchers and post-graduate students working in various fields of science and humanities. It intends to create a platform for disseminating their scientific work, discussing it with peers and, which is also important, for providing experience of presenting scientific talk in the English language. Preparing the talk and presenting it at such an event will help the participants to improve their academic English in its written and oral forms. Moreover, this experience will grant the participants greater confidence when speaking at big international forums.

The age of participants should not exceed 35 years. Senior colleagues and supervisors of young scientists can act as co-authors.

The conference will cover a broad range of topics, and the work will be organized in four sections relating to four general directions of research:

- 1. Biology and Physiology;
- 2. Humanities;
- 3. Geology and Chemistry;
- 4. Physics and Mathematics.

The organizing committee of the conference reserves the right to redistribute the submitted applications of participants by sections of the conference.

All accepted papers will be published and indexed in the conference proceedings ISBN Number and will be indexed by the RSCI analytical database.

Key dates:

15 April 23:59 – deadline for online registration of applications

1 May – manuscript submission deadline,

12 - 13 May – holding of the conference.
