This is to certify that

Komi Science Center, Ural Branch, Russian Academy of Sciences, Russia

has been approved as a member of the Northern Dimension Institute.

The Northern Dimension Institute (NDI) is a university network open to all interested higher-level educational institutions and research institutes. NDI pools expertise primarily in the four priority sectors of the Northern Dimension Policy (transport and logistics, culture, public health and social wellbeing, and environment). NDI aims to foster cooperation between the academia, public sector and business actors as well as disseminate and promote information and expertise related to Northern Dimension among the decision-makers and society.
